Vol. 71 Wartburg College, Waverly, Iowa January 7, 1977 No. 14

Four contempcrary ballets are tentatively scheduled to be performed Thursday evening in Neumann Auditorium by the Royal Winnipeg Ballet.

Royal Ballet to perform

Third in this year's Artist Series, the Royal Winnipeg Ballet will perform for the Wartburg audience at 8 p.m. Thursday, Jan. 13, in Neumann Auditorium.

Coffee and cookies will be served in the Union by the alumni following the program and all ticket holders are invited to attend. The dancers have also been invited, according to Gerald Tebben, Artist Series director. Non-student tickets prices range from $4 to $6.

Included on the tentative program are four contemporary ballets: "Grand Pas Espagnol" by Benjamin Harkarvy honoring the Russian-Spanish style of classical ballet from the 19th century; "Adagietto" by Oscar Araiz, a pas de deux of contemporary character set to the fourth movement of Mahler's Fifth Symphony; "Family Scenes" also by Araiz using the acting or mime style of the serious silent film; and "The Hands" by Paddy Stone, a tribute in seven parts to the manual extremities using the music of Mozart, the Beatles and Malcolm Arnold.

The Royal Winnipeg Ballet is the oldest such company in North America and became the first "royal" ballet of the British Commonwealth in 1951. Under the direction of former dancer Arnold Spohr, the ballet has won numerous awards including the "Best Company" gold medal from the Paris International Dance Festival and an invitation to the Shakespearean Festival in Stratford, Ontario.

Funded partially through the Canadian Arts Council and the city of Winnipeg, the ballet has traveled internationally through four continents and had sell-out performances in the Soviet Union.

Traffic court formed

By DON MCCOMB

Traffic regulation violators on the Wartburg College campus have a new procedure to follow when appealing their violations to campus officials. Acting as an extension of the Student Senate, the Wartburg Parking and Traffic Commission has been created to sit in judgment of traffic violation appeals.

The three-member commission is headed by junior Jerry Weidner. His assistants are junior Kathy Brockman and sophomore Steve Kruger. The commission assumes the role previously administered by the Office of Student Affairs.

According to the old procedure, after receiving a ticket, a student had seven days in which to report to the Security Office. If the ticket was not voided by security, a student could appeal the ticket to the Student Affairs Office. If the ticket was still not repealed, a student could go before the Campus Hearing Board to air his complaint.

Under the new procedure outlined by Dr. Kent Hawley, vice president of student affairs, a student now has 14 days to report to security instead of only seven. Secondly, the commission takes over the role of the Student Affairs Office in the appeal procedure. Finally, the employment of the newly formed commission closes off the Campus Hearing Board from traffic appeals.

Chairman Jerry Weidner hopes that the new procedure will help students in the task of voicing their appeals. Weidner warns students to abide by the regulations and not to view the commission as an easy way out of paying a ticket. A log will be kept of the appeals and repeating offenders will not be given multiple pardons. He also stated that both the college security and the local police are resuming intensive ticketing this term.

Dr. Hawley is in favor of the formation of the commission and sees its advantages as being beneficial in three areas. "First," said Hawley, "it returns a student responsibility to the students. Secondly, it brings the students closer to the problem." Finally, Dr. Hawley said he hopes that after working closely with the parking situation, the commission will be able to make recommendations to help eliminate problems in the future.

Disrud reports $800,000

"The Wartburg Design for Tomorrow" fund-raising program has surpassed another milestone in its quest for a three-year goal of $3,750,000.

A total of $801,950 has been reported by four Waverly and Wartburg College committees.

The Waverly Leadership Committee to date has reported 54 gifts amounting to $556,975; the Wartburg On-Campus Committee has 179 gifts for $132,088; the Waverly Special Gifts Committee reports 77 gifts for $79,122; and the Waverly General Gifts Committee has turned in 81 gifts amounting to $33,765.

More than 350 volunteers have assisted with the effort in the community.

A Waverly Rural Committee is to begin enlisting the support of area farmers in January, and the groundwork is being laid for a similar drive to begin in the Waterloo-Cedar Falls area by early spring.

More than 50 such area programs are planned over the three-year period of the first phase of "The Wartburg Design for Tomorrow."

In addition to the funds raised for capital needs and operating support, the Development Office reports that $201,000 has been raised through deferred giving toward the goal of doubling the college's endowment.

That goal of $850,000 is to be reached in as short a time as possible and is not included in the $3,750,000 for capital needs and operating support.

By LINDA CARPENTER

The Academic Calendar for 1977-78 was adopted by the Wartburg faculty at its December meeting, according to Dr. Robert Schnabel, vice president for academic affairs.

Work on this project began in October by a sub-committee of the Education Committee. The members of the sub-committee reviewed the present calendar as well as next year's before drafting a trial calendar. This calendar was then presented to the larger committee and to Dr. Kent Hawley, vice president for student affairs, for opinions by students and faculty.

"There are many, many factors to consider, so we tried to get input from every possible place," said Schnabel.

As Labor Day moves back to the first of September, the first day of Fall Term classes is easier to set, he said. According to Schnabel, the committee tried to avoid scheduling the beginning of classes during the Labor Day weekend.

The possibility of beginning in August, before the last family weekend of the year, was discarded because of summer school conflicts. With less than one week between the close of one school session and another there would be no time to get the buildings and dorms ready, Schnabel said.

A mid-Fall-Term break was also discussed and discarded by the Calendar Committee, which reasoned that while there are 10 weeks during the Winter Term with no break, the Fall Term sports an early Outfly, Homecoming and Parents Weekend.

"We couldn't afford to lose still another day of classes," said Schnabel. "To recognize the obligation of instructional days, a limit must be put on the days off."

Yielding Outfly to a fixed break day was also vetoed by the student input received by the board.

The students' wish to continue the large Christmas break was also worked into the calendar.

Important dates on the proposed 1977-78 calendar are as follows:

Sept. 6-7 Freshman and Transfer Orientation and Registration
Sept. 8 Fall Term Classes Begin

Oct. 22 Homecoming
Nov. 5 Parents Weekend
Nov. 23-28 Thanksgiving Recess

Dec. 12 Term Examinations Begin
Dec. 15 Term Examinations End

Jan. 3 Winter Term Classes Begin
Feb. 10 No Classes

Mar. 23-28 Easter Recess
April 10 Term Examinations Begin
April 13 Term Examinations End
April 13-23 Tour Week
April 24 May Term Classes Begin

May 19 May Term Classes End
May 21 Baccalaureate & Commencement

Editor drowns in junk mail

Mail, mail, mail! Every week it comes pouring into the Trumpet. Unfortunately, about 95 per cent of it is junk. It is no wonder the Postal Service has a hard time keeping track of it all.

Junk mail is not mail which is worthless to everyone, but mail for which you have no use. An example is the junk the Trumpet gets. Every week the Trumpet gets 30 to 40 pieces of junk mail. The Trumpet gets all kinds of junk mail of varying degrees of worthlessness. Every week we get several releases from Congressman Chuck Grassley's office. These are promptly thrown away along with the publicity releases from the ABC television network.

We get a lot of mail from the government. We got a directory of all of the offices of government to which questions can be addressed and the names of those in charge. I did save this, but I doubt I'll ever use it. We periodically get notices of grants given by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, but only rarely is an Iowa school among those listed which have benefited. Once this fall we received a beautiful 150-page full-color paperback book of the history of the American educational system from HEW. I couldn't bear to throw it, so I donated it to the Education Department.

We get mail from companies who want to run ads for their term paper service, which are not printed for ethical reasons, and from various other companies which try to sell us things we don't need.

The Trumpet gets publications from all sorts of organizations. We exchange papers with 20 other colleges, but we also get unsolicited publications from various Lutheran churches, from American Indian groups and from Zionist organizations.

This past week we got a release from the Consulate General of Israel who wished the Trumpet to know that he is willing to negotiate with the Arabs at any time, at Geneva, or any place else. Why he would send this to us I do not know, but it is this kind of mail which is making it difficult for the letters we write at Wartburg to reach their destinations.

I did get a postcard from the Guthrie Theatre in the Twin Cities this week asking if we wanted to continue to receive their releases. And although I do enjoy knowing what is playing there, I told them to take us off their mailing list.

Actually, though, there is one kind of mail we haven't been getting enough of lately--letters to the editor. We welcome your letters and would like to thank those who wrote to us Fall Term.

Letter to the Editor

To the Editor:

I want to express publicly my appreciation to all who participated in the outstanding performance of Christmas at Wartburg on Sunday evening, Dec. 12.

Each of the 190 students who sang or played a musical instrument can be proud of his or her contribution to a magnificent production. A special note of thanks must also go to the technical staff for their skilled efforts that enhanced the total effect.

The faculty of the Departments of Music and Art merit great praise for leadership and devotion that reflect most favorably on themselves and on Wartburg.

All those in the audience who raised voices in common celebration of the birth of Christ helped to make Christmas at Wartburg a truly memorable occasion.

My thanks to all.

Singleton is back!

By NORM SINGLETON

Greetings. My name is Norm Singleton. Had you troubled yourself to glimpse at the byline, I wouldn't be wasting valuable effort divulging such well-known information. Last year I wrote a column called "southeast iowa corner." Some Trumpet readers undoubtedly recall me, though some will not. Most, however, heartily wish they had never heard of me, Conesville or Barney's Tap. To each his own.

At any rate, after a term-long sabbatical in southeast Iowa, my native land, I have made a triumphant return to Wartburg amid the cheers of dozens, and although for six months my sensitive hand has been gone from the sluggish pulse of Wartburg, I am embarking on a new column.

What's more, this column will have certain goals. First and foremost, it gives me a forum in which to point with pride and view with alarm as well as to vent my spleen against any and all institutions. I hope to point out that it is possible to have a good time in college, contrary to popular belief that any place can and should have the personal touch and to remind folks that in these troublous times nothing seems sacred. Hence the title.

I mentioned a sabbatical, meaning one semester at the University of Iowa, located in Iowa City. I retain many grim, if not ghastly memories of the place. Included among these is the outrageous price of beer. I feel I must apologize to Joe of the Knighthawk about a few isolated references to his large prices on ludicrously small draws. Well, Joe, I beg a thousand pardons. For a draw of only slightly larger dimensions than your own, one must tender 50 cents in Iowa City. I found this horrifying as well as expensive and so made a point of never getting drunk twice in one day. . .

This was not as easy as it may sound. There is something about Iowa City that makes intoxication devastatingly attractive. Perhaps it is the jovial and helpful administrative staff, many of whom recall me fondly. I remember one morning in the financial aid office when, after being heartily ignored for an hour, I announced in stentorian tones that the office was a fine example of a bureaucratic quagmire and left amidst a shower of unwanted attention.

Is Nothing Sacred?

But there were other instigators of chronic drunkenness, my instructors and the classes they taught. With this attitude, I was naturally loved and respected by them in turn. One instructress had little sense of humor with me after I included with an assignment a critique of her class, calling it a mockery of the learning process so tightly structured as to stifle any and all creativity a student might have. Perhaps her lack of humor could also be attributed to the fact that she had asked for an analytical paper and I handed in a short story starring--you guessed it--Conesville, Barney and southeast iowa.

I will say the classes moved quickly, so quickly that I often attended them wearing a cape and tights emblazoned with a huge S. But there was little emphasis on learning or interest. In my final exam in Elementary German I breezed through the major sections by listing flawlessly the past tense and past participles of various German verbs of which I know the meaning of none.

But best of all were the girls. Few U of I coeds seem to be willing to emerge from their rooms without a good three hours preparation. Including the donning of $500 worth of clothing. This refers to girls of the dorms--those residing in sorority houses take longer and are worth more. For some time I considered a career of kidnaping these walking bankrolls and selling them to a dry goods store. I do not hold it against them for wishing to live in such a manner. However, I am a less than snappy dresser--some unkind persons call it seedy. To each his own, right? Well, one fine morn at the tail end of a three-day bender, I was strolling into the dorm and met a typically dolled-up coed, and despite my air of decrepitude and other substances, I doffed my yellow cap and wished her a good morning. She stopped dead in her tracks, looked at me as if I'd just dumped an ashtray in her bra and ran shrieking back into the dorm, to shower, I assume. I resolved to speak to no more girls and decided to extend my bender.

I must hasten to add that there are exceptions to this rule. There were an elite few who hardly minded at all to greet me cheerfully and one in particular who took great pains to make my last days memorable, thereby earning my everlasting love and admiration.

But the straw that broke the turkey's back came one morning following a snowfall when I observed something written in the snow on the river overlooked by my dorm. Knowing that Iowa City is indeed the academic and cultural center of the state and certain the message was undoubtedly one of great social significance, it was with no little eagerness that I mounted the stairs and gazed upon the writing. There for all to see in twenty-foot high letters were the unforgettable words, "Bill has (fill in the blank) breath."

That was the day I sat down and wrote the breathless letter to the Wartburg admissions office, begging for rescue. I must admit that when I did leave Iowa City, it was with mixed emotions, happiness and joy.

High school students to sing here Sunday

A public concert Sunday, Jan. 9, will highlight Wartburg College's eighth annual Meistersinger Honor Choir Festival, which will be held here this weekend.

One hundred sixty-six singers from high schools in Iowa, Wisconsin, Minnesota and Illinois will participate, according to Dr. James E. Fritschel, director of the Wartburg Choir and coordinator for the Honor Choir Festival.

Serving as clinician will be Dr. Karle Erickson, associate professor of music and director of choral studies at Lawrence University, Appleton, WI.

The public concert will begin at 4 p.m. in Knights Gymnasium. Tickets, which are $1 for adults and 50 cents for students, may be purchased at the door..

The high school students will be divided into two choirs with one being directed by Dr. Fritschel and one by Dr. Erickson. Each will sing four numbers and then the massed voices will perform Haydn's "Little Organ Mass."

The students in the Honor Choir were selected on the basis of recommendations from their high school choral directors. Rehearsal of the honor Choir will begin at noon on Saturday, according to Dr. Fritschel.

Dr. Erickson, who is president of the North Central Division of the American Choral Directors Association, is a noted guest conductor, clinician and adjudicator.

He will direct the 1977 Minnesota All-State Chorus and is active as a tenor soloist in such works as Rossini's "Stabat Mater," Mendelssohn's "St. Paul Oratorio" and Handel's "Messiah."

Professional experience includes teaching summer sessions at the University of Denver and the University of Georgia, conducting a choral music festival on the island of Guam and teaching public school music in St. James, MN., and Sterling, IL.

He holds a B.A. degree from St. Olaf College, Northfield, MN., and earned his master's and doctor's degrees from the University of Illinois.

Knights visit Spartans following tourney win

By RANDY BRUBAKER

With the bulk of Wartburg's non-conference basketball schedule out of the way, the Knights enter Iowa Conference competition tonight as they play at Dubuque.

After claiming the championship in the Cornell Tourney over the Christmas break, the Knights carry an 8-2 mark into the game.

Dubuque, third-place finishers in the IIAC one year ago, return seven letterwinners to the court this year.

Leading the Spartans will be center Dave Kuehl, along with Rick Sexton and Kevin Burns. Kuehl was second in the conference in rebounding last year.

The two schools split last year with Dubuque winning the opener, 66-57, while the Knights captured the second contest, 72-66.

Tonight's game will be broadcast live on KWAR-FM, starting with a pregame show at 7:20 and play-by-play at 7:30. The campus station plans to broadcast all of the team's conference games.

Wartburg begins loop play following a win over South Dakota on Dec. 18, 81-77, and a pair of victories in the Cornell Tourney. The Knights have now won seven of their last eight outings.

In all three games, Coach Lewis (Buzz) Levick continued to get balanced scoring from the team. Against South Dakota, Kirk Kinnear led the club in scoring with 18 points, while Mark Fry had 16, Jeff Werling, 15, and Bruce Iversen, 12.

The Knights got off to a good start against the North Central Conference team, ripping off seven straight points in the initial two minutes to lead 7-0.

Wartburg proceeded to take a 43-39 halftime edge, and outscored the Coyotes 10-2 during a four-minute period in the final half to build a 65-55 lead.

South Dakota narrowed the gap to two, 79-77, with 39 seconds remaining, but a pair of free throws by Iversen with eight seconds left iced the win.

Carleton was Wartburg's opening-round foe in the holiday tournament. The Knights had little trouble with the Minnesota school, winning 70-52.

Playing in front of a hometown crowd, Werling was the team's high scorer, hitting for 18 points. Also in double figures were Steve Burnham and Kinnear, with 15 and 11, respectively.

In the championship against Cornell, Wartburg surged to an early 24-12 lead, but saw it dwindle as the first half continued.

Cornell took the lead during the early minutes of the second half, but the Knights came back to hold a slim margin throughout most of the stanza.

Werling and Fry, in foul trouble most of the second half, were both on the bench with five fouls for the final five minutes when Cornell came from behind to tie the contest up and send it into overtime.

Iversen tallied six points during the extra period, and the Knights held on to win, 68-64.

Burnham, Werling and Fry had 14 points each during the game, and Kinnear and Iversen added 10 apiece.

Burnham was named the tournament's most valuable player, and Fry and Werling earned all-tournament team honors.

Junior Kirk Kinnear and senior Jeff Werling outjump their opponents to insure a Wartburg rebound in last Thursday's Cornell Tourney. The Knights won two of the three games played there.

Grapplers return to mat Saturday

It's back to action for the Knight wrestling squad, starting with a junior varsity match against Kirkwood Community College tomorrow at 1:30 p.m.

On Tuesday, the Knights travel to Augustana. They take with them a 23-meet winning streak and a ranking of 12th in the nation.

Last year Wartburg defeated Augustana, 26-9, in Knights Gymnasium, but head wrestling coach Richard Walker says it may not be that easy this time around. "Augustana is always tougher to beat at home," Walker said.

Five Knights on all-Lutheran team

Five Wartburg College football players have been named to the 1976 All Lutheran football squad.

Junior kicker Carl Cheeseman was named to the second team, while senior running back Brian Albert, senior end Dan Hanson, sophomore tackle Mike Sojka and senior tackle Dan Swift were given honorable mention.

The selections were made by Bud Thies, a writer for the St. Louis Globe-Democrat and will be featured in the January issue of the Lutheran Brotherhood Bond.
